Circuit Court.

Court opened Tuesday with Judge Smith presiding. The calendar contains 77 cases, as follows: Criminal 11, issues of fact 32, impudence 3, chancery 31. Business disposed of so far is as follows:

People vs. Fred Cornford, burglary; tried and jury disagreed. Ably defended by J. H. Collins.

People vs. Chas. Bush, of Lingsburg, charged with keeping his saloon open on Sunday. Jury instructed by court to acquit, a decision of the supreme court being cited by F. H. Watson to the effect that saloonists have rights in certain cases to visit their saloons on Sunday if not accompanied by any one else. The decision applied exactly to the case in hand and Bush was discharged, greatly to his delight.

People vs. John Young, burglary. F. H. Watson appointed to defend. Young subsequently withdrew his plea of not guilty and plead guilty. Remanded for sentence.

People vs. John Flood, assault with intent to commit rape. This case was disposed of on Friday last. Flood was convicted at November term and moved for a new trial which was granted, and he plead guilty to assault. He was fined $25. He also plead guilty to keeping his saloon open July 4th and a like fine was imposed.

In the case of the people vs. Chas. Lowes, charged with perjury, G. R. Lyon was appointed to prosecute, Mr. Chandler being ineligible having been previously interested in a civil case in which the crime is alleged to have been committed. Trial set for March 8.

People vs. Henry Clay, bastardy. Van R. Pond appointed to defend prisoner and after investigating case his advice was wisely taken and a marriage resulted, Clay being the groom and Miss Mary Madison the bride.

The case of the people vs. Arthur Hieby, charged with rape, is on trial, F. H. Watson prosecuting, with M. V. B. Wixom and A. E. Richards defending.

Fred Tunison, convicted of disposing of chattel mortgaged property, was released on suspended sentence.

Burnham et al. vs. Wismer et al., and Cady et al. vs. Wismer et al., settled.

J. A. Morrice, administrator, vs. Eleanor Hinkley, and Deerfield township vs. Wm. Harper, continued.

Cynthia McComb vs. Chas. McComb, divorce; decree granted.

CLAIMS HE WAS HYPNOTIZED.

Why Thorne Ruppert Changed His Testimony Before a Jury.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 20.—Thorne Ruppert of Webberville, who was nominated by the free silverites at Grand Rapids this week for regent of the university, has an amusing record as a witness in the Ingham circuit court. He was made defendant in a suit for slander, and testified in his own behalf.

Upon a second trial of the case he sought to modify or change his testimony rendered upon the previous trial. When cross examined by R. A. Montgomery as to why he had testified differently, he declare that upon the former trial the attorney had exercised a hypnotic influence over him. The record discloses the following questions and answers were recorded by the official stenographer of the court:

"Do you mean to say you have at times been insane?"

"No, not crazy any more than maybe insane mad or something like that."

"Now, did you get mentally disturbed at the time we tried this case before?"

"Yes, I did. That is, I don't mean to say I was crazy, but I think you had me under your influence. I was hypnotized. There was a power you had over me. I think that is just it."

"Do you state that in good faith to the jury?"

"I do, certainly, I tell it just as it is."

"You think I had you hypnotized?"

"I do. If I was on my dying bed I would tell it."

"Now, Mr. Ruppert, in all good faith you swear to this jury that you were in such a mental condition as not to know when you were swearing before what it was you were answering, and in all good faith you believe it was because you were hypnotized or under my influence?"

"I think that was the reason; yes, sir."

"When did you make up your mind you were hypnotized?"

"I made it up from the start."

"Did you get out from under the influence of it when you went off the stand?"

"I did. I kept my eye on you all the time."

"Why didn't you come around after you came out from under your trance and tell the jury you were embarrassed about it?"

"I felt embarrassed."

And the jury gave the plaintiff a verdict.

Blew Out the Gas.

About 10 o'clock Wednesday evening Hugh Campbell registered at the National hotel and was assigned a room by Clerk Slade. About 6:30 Thursday morning Slade detected the smell of gas and an investigation showed that it came from the room occupied by Campbell. The door was at once opened and Campbell was found in bed, dead, and the gas partially turned on. Campbell on retiring assured Slade he understood how to turn out the gas, but it is apparent he did not. Coroner Monroe held an inquest, the jury deciding that deceased came to his death by his own carelessness. Mr. Campbell had made his home for some time past with J. Johnson, of Vance. During the past year he worked considerably for Eli Martin. He is spoken of as an industrious man. A partially filled bottle of liquor found in his room, probably explains the indirect cause of his death.

Raising Geese.

I see in the Jan. 23d issue of the Farmer, a gentleman wishes information in regard to raising geese. As I have bred and raised geese for 10 years, I will give my experience. First, I will say a few words in regard to the breeding stock. It matters not which breed is kept, but I breed the Toulouse and think they are best for fancy or market, although a cross between the Toulouse and common goose is very good for market, often growing larger than the pure bred, using a Toulouse male and the common female. But my experience is not to keep any of the half breeds for next year's breeding stock.

Geese I find do much better to be mated in pairs, and not three females to one gander as some breeders suggest. Also do not be afraid of breeding birds getting too old, but after getting a pair once mated leave them together for a number of years.

For a place for the female to make her nest in, take large store box, which can be had at almost any clothing house for 15 or 20¢, place in some quiet place where she will not be disturbed, especially if one intends letting the goose incubate.

If a person wishes to raise a large number he may take all the first eggs away and set under hens, allowing not more than five eggs to one hen. Again, if set under hens one must watch very close about hatching time, as some will kill the goslings as soon as hatched; but they usually will take care of them.

If they are to be raised with the hen, build a small yard of twelve-inch boards, placing a box in one corner for the hen, which she should be kept in until the goslings learn the call of their foster mother, the boards being to keep them from running away. After having put the goslings in the yard they should be watered, but not enough to get all wet. For the first few days the feed should be bran mixed with water, or better yet, add a little stale bread which has been soaked in milk. This may be for the first week. Always have plenty of water to drink. After this add a little corn meal to the bran, and increase the meal as the goslings grow older; but do not forget the green feed from the first. The first green in spring is dandelion, and later the nettle, which is very much relished by goslings, and acts as a regulator, keeping them healthy. The greens should at first be chopped fine, but as the goslings grow older they can pick it to pieces. After they begin to feather out they can be fed on grain, and let run at large where they can get plenty of water or grass.
